PACIFIC COAST LINE DID NOT MAKE MUCH MONEY IN LAST YEAR

Figures in the annual report of the the fiscal year which closed recently, show that the company is apparently not rolling in wealth as a result of its 1914-15 business.

An article in the Coast Seamen's ournal states that the Pacific Coast Company, owner of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company, in its report for the year ended June 30, 1915, shows a net income from operation of $689,089 (against $834,934 for 1914).

After deducting charges, etc., and preferred dividends, there remains a balance of $84,002 (against $279,309).

The payment of the common dividend ($210,000) leaves a deficit of $125,998 (against $105,691). The extra dividend this year is equal to 2.21 per cent on the combined common and second pre-ferred (against 4.54 per cent last

The report says that the steamship siness felt the full effects of the siness depression during the year, but that, by consolidation of forces and other enocomies in operation, it was possible to reduce expenses so as to more than offset the decrease in gross earnings which was $109,718.
